Relation to class concepts

The last lecture where the question was discussed the example of a city that think how cities were made. I do compare this to my application HealthHack as my application is a place where people can find meals, exercise, and BMI calculator all in a single application. My application also ensures that the content being presented to the user is refined so the spread of misinformation is not done.

The concept of change management from lecture Product quality and change Stewardship can be seen in my application building process very well. Initially I had planned that based on BMI calculator I will display meals and exercises to the user. Upon, further research it was found that BMI was not a very good source to categorize their weight.

The peer review had brought this point up which helped my realize that I need to change my application concept. This indeed will improve the quality of content delivered to the end user of my application. During the development I must ask Why? How? What? This helped me clear the idea of why I would need this feature, how would this benefit my application.